In one line, what made you pick that one?

9 responses

I also look in for quality of food

Actual delivery time and fair price

Reliability and repeat ability over discount or performance- although i strongly believe restaurants have enough margins to take the hit of delivery irrespective of the cost - so pricing and delivery should be optimal along with speed but if i had to prioritise for consumer will be availability and reliability.

Smaller bills

May be the clear coat break up

Not intrested in paying hidden fee

Both are useless. Both of them charges total ₹200+. Fair total price is ₹50 to ₹130 and is healthy food with good quantity.

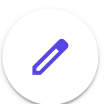

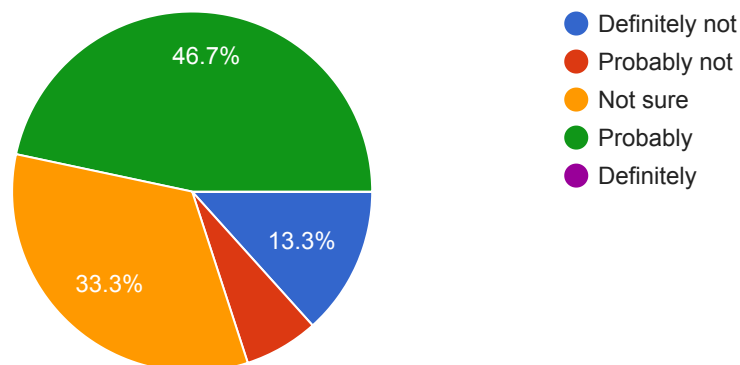

Information is key

price

Imagine you tried the one you picked because of a ₹100 off first-order offer. Once that offer ended, would you keep using it?
